LEONORA DUSE is dead, dying at her work, using as every real worker would like to die.

She, Sarah Bernhardt and Rachel will be remembered as great leaders in the art of interpreting thought, of directing and stimulating imagination. There is no one in sight to take the place that Duse leaves. But among the Italian and Jewish children in the poor quarters there are a dozen Duses and Bernharts. Some one of them will light her way into the sunlight of fame.

THE PRINTING ASSOCIATION of Tokyo votes a boycott on all products from California. That is their right, but they will soon forget about it. Commerce goes to its best market.

In any case, Japan and the United States will have no quarrel. We are only excluding all Asiatics as Japan excluded the Chinese.

YOU KNOW that the population of Asia increases now by six millions every year and that as they learn more about keeping their babies alive the increase will be twenty millions. The entire increase would come to California if it could. That makes it necessary to have our position understood.

We are not interested in gentlemen's agreements. They are apt to develop into scraps of paper.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., tells his young nephew's public class, using the parable of the talents, that too many people want liberty without undertaking corresponding responsibilities.

That, he said, applied to nations, groups and individuals. It's a good reminder.

BUT MR. ROCKEFELLER knows, as does everybody, that responsibilities FOLLOW liberty.

You must let a child TRY to walk before it can walk. You must let it try to swim before it can swim. No people or individual was ever completely ready for liberty's responsibilities when liberty first came. This country isn't quite ready for liberty yet, judging by the Teapot Dome and the little attention paid to government by the average man.

D. GUTHRIE, earnest Protestant Episcopalian, in whose church young women go through beautiful dances as part of the religious service, tells the Christian church it is in danger. It has lost the working classes already and the intellectuals may slip away from it.

Generally, as you look over history, the intellectuals slip away first and laugh up their sleeves as they go through the motions. The working classes, on the other hand, are slow to get out of one religion to another that suits them better. What is there in a "fashionable" modern church—outside of Bible reading—to comfort the working classes or interest the intellectuals?

THAW SEES FREEDOM BY NIGHT

Packs up as Case Goes to the Jury: Sudden Ending of Trial Is Mystery

Philadelphia, Pa., April 22.—With the Thaw sanity case suddenly halted, a surprise to everyone concerned, Philadelphia lawyers and others interested in today trying to solve the peculiar riddle this action presents.

The opposition to Thaw's release by some mysterious influence delayed just at the time when the public was expecting fresh news of the trial.

Not only Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit, whose presence on the stand had been almost absolutely foretold by her attorneys, in the courtroom when the anti-trialists that actually ended the case came, but she had hurried at top speed from Atlantic City, believing she would testify.

REMARKABLE SITUATION. When the court recessed her testimony thought she would be called. When it recessed all the attorneys recessed.

Thaw is confident he will be declared sane. So sure is he, that he remained in his room last night at the hospital packing some of his personal belongings.

Even if he is declared sane to be insane, it is not expected he will remain at the institution, as the authorities there are said to have expressed a desire that he be removed to some other hospital. It was explained that hospital authorities do not want to be involved in further court litigation.

Some of the attorneys would talk on what had happened. It had happened. That was all there was to it. But it was generally felt that a unique court situation has come to pass. A case of admitted importance will go to the jury as the ultimate of slim evidence—and without the testimony offered by any one of the three biggest figures in the case.

GIRL BANDIT ADMITS BOLD ROBBERIES

CELINA ROTH COONEY

(From the International News, New York.)
Brobdingnagian terror of Brooklyn, N. Y., whose bold holdups suggested the police for several months. She and her husband were finally caught in Florida through a letter the husband wrote to his mother, asking for funds to bury their dead baby in the South.

BOP-BANDIT TO LAW

Brooklyn Girl Terror Is Glad Now That Tiny Mite Didn't Live

Jackonville, Fla., April 22.—"Says I loved that kid. I guess, though, it's better that it died."

That's what Celina Cooney, New York's "bottled bandit" married as, accompanied by her first child, she and her husband, Eddie, took the train for New York. Celina is charged with fourteen "bottled" robberies. It's all been like a dream to me. This morning, the flight to Florida and my capture. I missed Eddie about a year ago. We came down here because I was about to give birth to my baby.

TRIED TO BE "IRON SERVED"
The girl said her child was born here April 15, after their flight from New York which led them through thirteen states. The baby lived just a week. The mother continued, as she took her place in the train amidst one of her captives.

"I named the baby Kathleen after my mother in law. My husband and I were the only ones who went to the funeral."

Just for a moment this slip of a girl—this twenty-year-old—shook a bit. "Then."

"I tried to smile through all this and play the part of a good mother as the papers played me up. I didn't want any more babies. I'll never know how I loved that kid of mine."

Asked if she was a member of the party which held up twenty-five persons in the National Biscuit Company's Boston plant, where Nathan Martin, an alias, who robbed her head.

"As a child, I guess I'd better confess. I was one of the party, and I—"

"On the way her husband, beside a detective, warned: "Better not talk too much, Celina. The girl flinched back."

"I was there. That was my job before leaving New York. And that was only ten days before my child was born. We had to have a mother and that was the only way to get it."

The girl returned to say whether or not she would plead guilty when arraigned.

FOOLED POLICE. One hand went up for her possible black hair, which she hid with streaks of natural brunette were already showing.

"You know they've got to be cleared with fourteen holdups. I don't think the cops can be that, do you?"

It was rather a lurid tale Detective Casey and Tracy told of the capture of this girl and her ten-year-old husband.

High Lights in Address by Coolidge

"A FEW public officers were guilty of participation in it (sordidness in government), but the wonder is not that there were so many . . . but there were so few."

"Our country does not need a greater outlay of expense, but a greater application of constructive economy."

"Notwithstanding the disturbing character of recent revelations to the present minister to the need of taxation reform, I believe the requirements of economy and reduced taxes will be met in a way not inconsistent with the great resources of our country."

"A nation that is morally dead will soon be financially dead. The progress of the world rests on courage, honor and faith."

"Our country refused to adhere to the covenant of the League of Nations, with a decisive rejection that I regard as final."

"Nothing of more importance to Europe has occurred since the armistice than the Dawes report."

"I trust it may commend itself to all European governments as a method by which they can arrive at a stable adjustment of the vexatious problem of reparations."

"I trust that private American capital will be willing to participate in advancing the contemplated loan to Germany."

The World Court proposed by President Harding seems "up to the present time the most practical one."

"With a definite settlement of the German reparations problem I should favor the calling of a conference (similar to the Washington conference) to achieve further limitations of armament and initiate plans for codification of international law."

"Our first duty is to ourselves. American standard must be maintained. American institutions must be preserved."

"We need a faith that is broad enough, to let the people make their own mistakes."

"One newspaper is better than many criminal laws. One schoolmaster is better than a legion of bailiffs. One clergyman is better than an army with hammers. These are the guarantees of peace and progress."

"We seek concord with all nations through mutual understanding."

"Wars will cease when they (the people) will that they shall cease. Peace will reign when they will that it shall reign."

COOLIDGE'S ADDRESS

Path in the American people means a faith in their ability to form sound judgments, when even the facts have been presented to them clearly and without prejudice. Granted that the largest possible independence is a desirable goal, consideration at once arises as to how such independence can best be secured. The true method would appear to be in recognizing the broad principle of our individual and national dependence, recognizing the requirements which flow from that condition, and governing our selves accordingly. Complete independence of others becomes a very real and a very necessary condition of our own and our nation's independence. From this principle arise the obligations which we owe to each other, and which we owe to the world. The danger to America is in the direction of the failure to maintain its economic position, and in the direction of the failure to make our ideals practical.

One of the prominent requirements of our country at the present time is to re-establish and emphasize in the public mind this law of reciprocity. The danger to America is in the direction of the failure to maintain its economic position, and in the direction of the failure to make our ideals practical.

PLAYS WAR GRAFTERS
Some of the recent developments in Washington have revealed the character of the grafting process in which I refer to a very dramatic way. Beginning nearly ten years ago our country entered a period when conditions were at Continued on Page 6, Column 1.

PRESIDENT TO PUNISH 'GRAFTERS'

Will Oust All Guilty Officials: Warns of Waste in the Government Funds

New York, April 22 (INS).—America stands ready to call another world conference for further restriction of armament and reclassification of international law—if the Dawes conference succeeds in settling the German reparations questions and Europe returns to stability and composure that would be conducive to the success of such a gathering.

President Coolidge made this statement to an audience of newspaper publishers at the Waldorf here to-day.

Not outside the league, the President declared, he believed the United States could and should play a prominent part in promoting world betterment by frequently engaging in international conferences, by adhering to a world court of justice, and by gradually conducting its own affairs as to demonstrate to other nations the practicability and desirability of service that insulate American interests.

OPPOSED TO LEAGUE. The program, Mr. Coolidge said, can be carried out without any impairment of America's political or economic independence and without any sacrifice of America's right to judge for herself what sort of affairs play to world affairs.

For the first time since he entered the White House Mr. Coolidge dealt extensively with foreign affairs in a public address, and he continued it Continued on Page 6, Col. 7.

THAW, CONFIDENT OF RELEASE, WANTS TO GO TO NEW YORK

CHANGES HIS MIND ABOUT GOING HOME WITH MOTHER

The mystery, summed up, the jury will decide the case will consider the testimony of only one non-privileged expert, which, in itself, is a "stand-off."

STIFFER "MORAL DENT"

Attorney Dickson of the opposition, in his address to the jury, said Thaw showed his real nature by the way he treated his rabbits. During Thaw's first year of confinement in the hospital, he had been seized by recurrence of "brain storms," the attorney said, in which he revealed "a continual moral depravity."

For the last six years, the attorney said, Thaw plotted for his liberty. He cultivated friends, talked freely with everyone he might use later as a witness, and prepared in every way to get out.

Mr. Dickson, went extensively into Thaw's career. He laid great stress upon the allegation that after from time to time as the speaker apparently made telling points. Thaw's mother came into the court room when Mr. Dickson was speaking, and there was the daily scene of affection between her and Harry.

William A. Tracy, counsel for Russell William Thaw, thirteen-year-old son of Evelyn Nesbit, divorced wife of Harry Thaw, followed Mr. Dickson also in opposition to Thaw's release. He said he had a right to answer for the child on account of the boy's interest in the Thaw estate.

Mr. Gray told the jury that not a single eye witness had said Thaw is sane. "They merely told you they saw nothing to indicate he is of unsound mind," Mr. Gray added. "It is only a guess and merely negative testimony."

"It is preposterous to allow these lay witnesses to control your verdict by their negative testimony," Mr. Gray declared, "when even the slightest could not be sure by conversations with Thaw."

HINTS AT MYSTERY.

"What is there about this case that makes people chatter their tongues so readily?" Mr. Gray asked. "What is there about this and other Thaw trials and that Thaw family that makes witnesses charge their minds over night? Why were these juries so ready to exonerate Thaw in 1917 and get some in here and tell you he is entirely normal?"

Thaw testified again and why didn't his mother, Mrs. Copley Thaw, testify? Only the three lawyers concerned answer those questions, of course, and at present they won't. Perhaps after the jury has reported they will do so.

Cat's Red Earrings Cost Cambridge Man $20 Fine

Aredia Kasanjian, Cambridge housewife, decided the beauty of his cat would be enhanced if it had earrings.

Accordingly, as the story was told, he decided the beauty of his cat would be enhanced if it had earrings. Aredia punched holes in the ears of his pet. Then he inserted flame-colored glass buttons.

The cat's cries attracted the attention of neighbors who made protest. Aredia was found guilty of cruelty and paid a fine of $20.

moved from one hotel to another. That was the way it steered clear of them.

One of the detectives said: "These folks have been down here about three weeks. We traced 'em through a letter that Clancy wrote his mother. He wanted money with which to bury the dead baby."

POLICE JUST IN TIME.

The detectives arrived in Jacksonville just in time, as the girl and her youthful husband were said to have arranged passage on a steamship leaving shortly for New York. Hearing that the couple were going under the name of Sheehan, they found them in a rooming house.

The proprietor of the house, hearing the couple discussing the death of their infant, notified the police. The New York detectives went there. After the first rap on the door came the query:

"What do you want?" "Find out the answer in a feminine voice."

"All right—give me time to put on a skirt!" The detectives agreed. But they say they heard whistlespeers regarding making an escape down the fire escape and they broke in the door.

Raid Detective Gray: "When that door broke open there stood the girl here, pointing a gun at us, but she didn't shoot. She turned her head, and we just took that gun away from her."

TELLS SUICIDE PLAN.

The girl was vitally interested in the conversation. She leaned forward and said: "You see, it was this way: I didn't want to kill my mother. I had made up my mind the other way around."

"But while the police were breaking in, I made him promise not to kill himself or me, and not to shoot at the police unless they fired first." It was then that the more or less senile County spoke:

"Say, you remember that holding of the National Bureau Company in Brooklyn? Well, listen to me, Kid—I was ruthless for the shooting of Munio—that is, if any one was. It wasn't my wife. Get me?"

It was then the young wife began trying to exonerate her husband of any blame in the various holdups with which they may be charged. He

Finds Way To Put Harness on Heat of Old Sol

San Francisco, April 22.—Marcel Moreau of San Francisco today announced he had found a way of harnessing the sun's heat.

He said that, working from experiments credited to Archimedes and Buffon hundreds of years ago, he had succeeded in devising a combination of little mirrors set in a bowl about four feet in diameter, which, when focused through a number of small lenses, would produce tremendous heat from the sun's light. He said he could regulate the heat.

Moreau claims to have produced with his machine heat sufficient to melt a diamond and cause it to disappear as gas.

Moreau vowed and waved a protest. "Now, forget it, forget it, I'm just jerry that little kid of ours did you see?"

The girl began crying softly: "He was my baby, you know. Aw, yes, but I loved him."

CITY CLUB MAY BUY OLD HOME OF ELKS

One set of plans involves the purchase of the adjoining Elks' Club at Somerset street, which will be vacated as soon as the new Elks' Home on Tremont street is completed.

WEST VIRGINIA TOWN WIPED OUT BY FIRE

Charleston, W. BOY TIES TO WRECK TRAIN ON B. & M.

Alleged to Have Placed Four Sleepers Across Tracks Near Union, N. H.

Union, N. H., April 22.—Rudolph Chaboussier, a sixteen-year-old boy of this town, is locked up in the county jail at Concord on a charge of complaint of officials of the Boston & Maine Railroad that it was he who obstructed the lines of 150 passengers on a Boston-Worcester train by placing four ties across the railroad track.

Only the alibi of Eugene Barrett and Freeman Hale prevented the probable disfigurement of the train and the possible loss of many lives.

Young Chaboussier, taken into custody when local residents among the passengers were said to have reported seeing him in the bushes beside the track, will not discuss the charge against him.

The boy is declared to have maintained a sullen silence since he was taken into custody.

Chaboussier was employed by a Boston & Maine not long ago as a minor capacity, and when his employment terminated, according to the police, complained loudly to his young friends that the railroad had "kicked" him out of some money.

Whoever placed the four big ties across the track selected one of the most dangerous spots on the division. They were found just around a pronounced curve, and only the fact that the train was moving slowly prevented a catastrophe.

Barrett and Hale wanted the barrier at almost the same moment. The engineer moved quickly and the train came to a stop just as a foot away from the obstruction.

EX-DEAN OF SIMMONS COLLEGE BARRED AS EXPERT WITNESS IN DIVORCE

BITTER LEGAL BATTLE IS STAGED IN BROCKTON COURT

Brockton, April 22.—A bitter struggle between opposing counsel over admission of "expert testimony" of Miss Sarah Louise Arnold, former dean of Simmons College, featured the contested divorce suit of Mrs. George B. Heffer of this city, a teacher in the Fall River Schools, before Judge Lloyd E. Chamberlain in Probate Court.

Mrs. Heffer alleges that her husband, formerly principal of Woodstock, Conn. Academy, deserted her in that town in November, 1919. She seeks the custody of John K. Heffer, their ten-year-old son.

MISS ARNOLD ON STAND.
Attorney C. G. Willard, Mrs. Heffer's counsel, called Miss Arnold to the witness stand and, after qualifying her as an expert in household economics, sought to have her tell the story as she had found it, of conditions surrounding the Heffer home, the purpose being to show the father was not a suitable person to have the child.

Judge Chamberlain abruptly ended the chances of Miss Arnold's research work when he told Atty. Willard that it was irrelevant.

"The power has been vested in me," said the judge, "to decide this important issue, and I must rule that I feel qualified to decide. No doubt Miss Arnold's study of the case would be interesting, and I should like to hear it, but I cannot hear it as bearing on this case."

Owing to the prominence of the young people, the case has attracted widespread attention. Mrs. Heffer is the daughter of John P. Arnold, principal of the Harvard school district of this city, and is a niece of former Dean Arnold.

Heffer made quite a name for himself at one time in educational circles, and he had a fine wife, but traveled extensively throughout America. After they were married in Rochester, N. H., in 1919, they lived in Natick, Melrose, Iowa and New Hampshire, after which they went to Alaska, where Mrs. Heffer founded the first kindergarten school north of Nome. While they were in the far northern country the little boy was born.

She alleges that while Heffer was principal of the Woodstock Academy he resigned his position, became insolent and somewhat abusive in his talk, and left her. She claimed him as a "shifter," or one who had filled several positions, none of which he held for any length of time.

HUSBAND'S DEFENCE.
Mr. Heffer took the stand for his defense. He testified that he had always done his best for his wife and child. He pointed to a letter he had written his wife, urging her to "begin all over again," and that he would furnish an apartment in Natick.

Mrs. Heffer told the court of a visit to the home of her father, after she had separated from her husband, when she inquired of him if he had come to offer her a new one. "No, I have three years to do that, and still get by," is the answer she gave, Mrs. Heffer testified.

Divorce Witness

SARAH LOUISE ARNOLD.
She qualified as expert in household economics to testify for Mrs. Heffer in her divorce case at Brockton, but Judge Chamberlain ruled that she was not qualified to testify as to whether the child of the couple in the case should be given to the father or the mother.

O'BRIEN URGES JAIL FOR AUTO LAW BREAKERS

Jail sentences for violators to insure greater public safety were urged at a meeting of the special committee appointed by Governor Cox to investigate automobile traffic conditions.

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien of Suffolk, District Attorney Arthur K. Reading of Middlesex County, Commissioner of Public Safety Alfred L. Poole, and Miller McGinnis of the bureau of research at Harvard University, were heard.

All agreed the time has come when fines are inadequate to check some classes of offenders and that jail sentences should be mandatory.

It was suggested that authority be given to the courts to impose fines as is the law in California, and that the machines should not be returned to their owners until they have complied with the judgment of the court.

Mr. McGinnis declared there is a conflict of authority respecting automobile legislation, which should be eliminated. He said that definite speed laws should be placed on the statute books.

He also urged that the authority now vested in inspectors of the Motor Vehicles Department to arrest drunken drivers without a warrant, should be given every possible officer.

The organization of a traffic court was again advocated. It was declared such a court could well hear all civil cases growing out of accidents and thus relieve the other civil courts.

HUB POLICE TO TAG 'NIGHT PARKERS'
Twenty-two thousand "night tags" will be placed in the hands of members of the police force to be used to convince any motorists that the "night tag" might cause them to be taken from prosecution for violation of traffic laws.

The drive against "night parkers" and other night violators of traffic rules, to be conducted under the direction of Deputy Superintendent of Police Thomas F. Goode.

IT'S O. K. IN FRANKLIN TO DRIVE OFF ROMEO'S WITH SHOTS

BACKS MOTHER UP FOR SHOTS AT DAUGHTERS' CALLERS

Franklin, N. H., April 22.—If five young men call at your house late at night and insist on taking your good-looking daughter auto riding, it's O. K. to shoot their radiator full of holes—the car's of course.

Mrs. Augusta Houlihan has set the precedent.

County Solicitor Raimo declares she didn't do wrong—not by a shot.

Everything's going to be all right and nothing's going to be done—except by the mechanic who will repair the radiator.

If Mrs. Houlihan wasn't blessed with two pretty daughters, and if five Lathropes of the Night weren't blessed with discerning eyes and if Mrs. Houlihan didn't possess a shaman's ability to swing a mean head of a shotgun—the whole affair might not have happened to stir up talk.

It Dancy and Irene Chase, sisters by a previous marriage, struts. They are reputed to be the fiercest girls within a radius of miles.

WIND "WATER" GOT LEAD. Last night and it was 10:30 when young men from Concord rolled their way in front of the Houlihan house.

He truth suffers a bad fracture. In present appearance, the sea might be said to be in error. The case they wanted cool water radiator, but instead of the radiator getting cool water, it got hot lead.

Mrs. Houlihan didn't remember it that way at all.

"Young men around here are too fresh," she asserted wrathfully in telling her version of the shotgun episode. "They came a-bumping on the door of my house and they wanted to take Pansy for a ride."

"I told them to get out and to stay out. The girls were there in the doorway. But the fellows wouldn't move or get out. My other girl—she had the gun—told them she'd see it."

ROMEO'S BEAT RETREAT. But from didn't see the gun. Instead, her mother did an Auto tale. That decided the issue. The five nocturnal Romeos suddenly departed with a punctured cooling system.

They didn't know, however, when they were shot. They complained to the authorities, but the County Solicitor turned thumbs down on their story.

The news in Franklin 1924 is rock, solid bottom, no floating, and it is reckoned down in Boston or in any other city.

"Ten thirty," declared Mrs. Houlihan.

And in 48 hours they were at sea!

A LATE telephone call. Two women—customers of The First National—in a pitch of excitement. A cablegram had called them to London at once.

Within 48 hours they were on board a Cunarder out of New York. In the meantime the bank had hurried their passports, arranged for photographs, had the passports visaed, bought railroad and steamship tickets, issued their letters of credit and travelers' cheques, arranged for payment of their income taxes (shortly due), reserved hotel rooms in New York, and written a schedule of payments of insurance policies to be paid during their absence abroad.

WITHIN 48 hours! It meant fast, accurate work, and a sure sense of the right thing to do quickly.

It has two morals:

1. If you're going abroad, let us plan it with you now, rather than 48 hours before sailing time.
2. In any emergency, turn naturally to a bank whose whole experience has been guided in the direction of doing the right thing for you, and doing it FIRST.

The Gas Pipe Cuts Out Smoke and Waste

What is in smoke besides soot?

To the casual observer all factory chimneys belching smoke and flame typify "INDUSTRY."

To the discerning "in"-looker smoke and flame belching from factory chimneys denote EXPENSE, WASTE, POLLUTION.

Modern science has made it possible to look into smoke and see the real losses which it clouds.

There are over two hundred different ingredients in the smoke which passes out of your factory chimneys.

You have paid for all these in the purchase price of your fuel. Among these ingredients are appreciable quantities of creosote, benzol, tar, gas, ammonia, and a long list of other things of commercial value, all of which are extraneous at the gas works and are credited to the cost of industrial fuel. It therefore means something to say that the gas pipe cuts smoke and waste out of this picture.

Besides WASTE, you have the EXPENSE of removing, storing, handling, ash disposal, etc.

Industrial gas, 100% usable, delivered at your factory through gas pipes, cuts out smoke and waste. It is actually no ash, soot or dust. It is instantaneously a constant supply at all times. It is perfectly controllable—turning any desired grade of heat. It requires no constant supply of after taking. You pay only for what you use, after it has been used eliminating investment of large sums in fuel for future use.

You can have this efficient fuel geared to the specific conditions of your business and your plant by our trained Industrial Engineers. It costs nothing to investigate the application of this service to over 1000 Boston businesses. Ask us.

TWO-CIRCUIT JACK IN LAST STAGE

When building a set with two stations of audio frequency amplification, in which telephone jacks are used, it is advisable to put a double circuit jack on the last step, as well as on the detector and first step.

This allows automatic control of the loud speaker, for when the plug is inserted in the last jack the loud speaker is cut out of the circuit. The tuning-in of a station can be done with the phones and the plug removed, automatically switching in the loud speaker.

The Listener

How long before the broadcasters get hold of some of the tricks of the phonograph record manufacturers? Drums are no longer used for photograph reproduction, I am told, but a special horn. If this was done by broadcasters the sound of drums could be more accurately reproduced.

ORCHESTRAWILL PLAY REQUEST NUMBERS

A program of numbers for which the greatest number of requests have been received will be played tonight at WNAC, the Shepard Store, by the Boston American Philharmonic Orchestra, under the leadership of William Dodge.

Some of the funny and interesting things that happen on a newspaper will be told by a couple of speakers.

Rev. A. E. George of the Boston American staff will speak on "Newspaper Anecdotes," and G. Ray Sargent, the American's waterfront reporter, will tell some more of the interesting sea stories such as

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. F. N. MAHONEY,
Boston Health Commissioner.

THE cleanliness of a city depends entirely upon the cleanliness of the individual homes. A city that is scrupulously clean is inhabited by housewives who take pride in seeing that the surroundings of the family are clean and wholesome, while in the same ratio filthy streets indicate that the residents are lax in observing the rules of health and sanitation.

Spring is the natural time to take on new life and new energy. The trees and the shrubbery awake from their winter sleep and blossom forth in new garments. Nature seems to say that these objects over which she has control make a fresh start. The average housewife should follow this example and get rid of the winter accumulation of dirt and filth.

Dr. Mahoney.

Gather all the waste material that may have accumulated in your yard or on the place in the house. Collect all the refuse and place it in the city collecting receptacles. As soon as possible, have the metal receptacles that should not be filled more than four inches from the top. Empty the old paper, bottles, tin cans, pieces of broken glass, leather, rubber, and other similar wastes should be placed in a metal receptacle.

JAPANESE SICK POOR ARE TREATED FREE

Washington, April 22 (Universal).—The Japanese exclusion act of the Johnson-Reed immigration bill should not be affected in any way by the House committee's decision of a "velvet threat" in his now famous letter to Secretary of State Hughes, in which he wrote the "grave consequences" would follow enactment of such legislation.

It was made plain in a formal statement by Chairman Johnson of the House immigration committee, who pointed out that passage of the exclusion provision was not hindered by recent action at the Hanbura letter, Johnson said.

MADE SENATE UNITE

"Long before that letter appeared the House had passed the measure in the House and a vote in the Senate to the effect that the measure should be passed. The House, however, had voted over 2 to 1 before the letter appeared."

WELL CONSIDERED

The final reason for the termination of the "gentlemen's agreement" and adopting the exclusion feature, House chairman said, was frankly set forth in committee hearings, reports of the House and Senate committee, personal discussion among members of the two bodies, and in the debate. They were, as stated, all in his statement.

PURELY DOMESTIC

"Immigration is a domestic question, and the right of the United States to determine its own immigration policy is a purely domestic question. It is not a question of international law or of the rights of other nations."

Business Opportunities

Success in business is achieved by seeking opportunities and then taking advantage of them.

Sometimes a business opportunity is merely a new device and a little capital for production. In such cases can be found in the Business Opportunities column below.

Consumption Is Not Contagious

Be Cautious, and It Need Not Frighten You

A reader sends this letter concerning the dread disease, consumption:

"Editor American:—
"Dear Sir—Seeing a statement that a woman infected with tuberculosis was about to be ordered out of a hospital, because her presence there was a menace to other patients, I am writing to ask whether or not there is any convincing evidence that the disease named is contagious in the sense referred to above. I believe that a common mere belief, supposition or hypothesis, such for example as the evidence on which rested, a few years ago, the belief that yellow fever was contagious. Yours truly,

T. M. M."

We refer our readers to any hospital. However, tuberculosis is NOT contagious. Children get tuberculosis when their mothers kiss them on the lips. They do not get tuberculosis unless the germ of tuberculosis is actually PLANTED INSIDE THE BODY.

This infection usually comes because of intimate family relations and demonstrations of affection. It comes also by careless spitting, the disease germs being scattered and inhaled in the form of dust. When one observes very simple rules there is no spreading of the disease.

Once It Was Gin

Now It's Plain BOOTLEG

Who could have thought that in this age of men, able to read and write, we should see reproduced in its worst features of English drunkenness that followed the manufacture and wide unrestricted sale of gin in England? Read this tribute to gin's power, written by Bernard de Mandeville in a book called "The Fable of the Bees, or Private Vices, Public Benefits."

"Nothing is more destructive, either in regard to the Health or the Vigorance and Industry of the Poor than the Infamous Liquor, the name of which deriv'd from Juniper
Berries in Dutch, is now, by frequent use and the Laconic Spirit of the Nation, from a word of midling length shrunk into a Moneyable, Intoxicating Gin, that charms the Unfortunate, the desperate and crazy of either Sex, and makes the starving Bot behold his Rags and Nakedness with stupid Indolence, or banter both in Senseless Laughter, and more insipid Jests; It is a Fiery Lark that sets the Brain in Flame, Burns up the Entrails, and scorches every part within; and at the same time a Lethe of Oblivion, in which the Wretch fimmers'd drowns his most pinching Cares, and with his Reason all anxious, reflection on Brats that cry for Food, hard Winters Frosts, and horrid Empty Homs.

"In hot and adult Tempers it makes Men Quarrelsome, renders 'em Brutes and Savages, sets 'em on to Fight for nothing, and has often been the cause of Murder. It has broke and destroy'd the strongest Constitutions, thrown 'em into Consumption, and been the fatal and immediate occasion of Apoplexies, Phrenisies and Sudden Death. But as these latter Mischiefs happen but seldom, they might be overlook'd and conniv'd at, but this cannot be said of the many Diseases that are familiar to the Liquor, and which are daily and hourly produced by it; such as Loss of Appetite, Fevers, Black and Yellow Jaundice, Convulsions, Stone and Gravel, Dropsies and Leucophlegmias."

What is said here in an interesting old style, by the Dutch author who went to England and wrote in English, could be repeated in modern language, changing the word
"gin" to "bootleg whiskey." We learn slowly and strangely enough, and we learn MOST slowly of all how stupid it is to imagine that pleasure can be found in poison.

Here Is a New Chicken

She Represents Brains and Patience

The Lamona is a new breed of chickens developed by the United States Department of Agriculture. The work of planning, thinking and making perfect this work is credited to Harry M. Lamona, Bureau of Animal Industry, for whom the new breed was named.

Lamonas will interest poultry breeders. Also students of genetics. But more so, housewives who sometimes pay $1 or more per dozen for eggs. Lamonas have greater egg-laying ability than any other general purpose fowl to date, according to Lamona. That's good news.

It is the story of a new breed made to order by crossing and re-crossing the best of old breeds—the White Plymouth Rock, the Single Comb White Leghorn and the Silver Gray Dorking.

Three for one; old for new; good for better. Always improving. That's progress worth while. Also efficiency.

For the new breed will give you MEAT, HAS GREATER
EGG-LAYING POWERS, PLUS THE PREFERRED WHITE SHELLED EGGS.

Here you have efficiency—a cheaper and better product;
also one that is in greater demand.

Efficiency engineers, manufacturers, sales managers and all interested in doing a day's work better will profit by studying Harry M. Lamona's work of improving America's business hen, whose eggs lay many hundred eggs, then go to the chopping block and thence the kettle.

Actual work developing this breed dates back to 1912.
This, of course, after much study. Then more years of earnest thinking, patience and hard work.

In this world of practical affairs Lamona won, because he had a winning plan. He won because patience, thinking and hard work always win.

Try it, and good luck. Lamona found a new breed of chickens superior in many ways to the old breeds.

What can you find? The answer is the answer to what is success?

Are Women's Ears Decent?

The drive for uncovering women's ears seems to have failed. Women who wear their hair long still plaster it over the ears, which are also concealed by the prevailing bobs.
Thus is destroyed one of the loveliest lines of a woman's body, the line running back of the ear and down the neck
to the shoulder.

This fashion of covered ears is not new. It is a revival. When Queen Victoria, after her marriage, brought in the fashion of brushing up the hair so as to uncover the ears, it seemed at first indecent to her contemporaries.
So it seems to be again.

WHEN 'BABE' PUTS THE ENGLISH ON IT,

WHEN 'BABE' PUTS THE ENGLISH ON IT,

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

BY HELEN ROWLAND

THEORETICALLY, every man
is a creature of strong principles, flawless judgment, hard common sense, "right" in his Spartan soul.

Oh, yes,
he is.

Theoretically, he is never more than "ten minutes" away from the "matter what his wife may say."

Theoretically, he is out of bed promptly at seven every morning—but only to shut off the alarm clock.

Theoretically, he walks briskly to his office every day—but, somehow, it never seems to reduce his weight or his tax bills.

Theoretically, he works eight hard, long hours out of twenty-four—but when you call him at the office they always tell you to try
"luck" place, in the corner.

Theoretically, he never snatches
more than a "bite" of lunch—but
it takes him two or three hours to swallow it.

Theoretically, he regards Woman as a goddess—but, as long as he's single, he treats her more like a menace.

Theoretically, he hates a "loud woman"—but he will follow a streak of yellow hair and red stockings like a streak of lightning.

Theoretically, he is a "hard-boiled business man"—but in reality, he is a sheep in wolf's clothing.

Theoretically, he intends never to marry—but, somehow, he always gets tripped up in a pink baby-rattle, and finds himself facing the altar before he can catch his balance.

Theoretically, he doesn't give a fig for public opinion—but he is afraid to tie a shoestring wider than a dollar.

Theoretically, he is the soul of modesty—but he wears a new coat and a few bits of string, he considers himself entitled to several fifty-dollar bills for a new set of golf clubs.

Theoretically, he never snatches
more than a "bite" of lunch—but
it takes him two or three hours to swallow it.

Veterans and Bonus

Editor American:—

Although all the war veteran association—with one notable exception—have protested against the Loan Shark's "Emergency Act" that the House of Representatives passed as a "Bridler's Bonus," it remained for our good friend the Herald to expose the Loan Shark's Act. Here papers again come out in the open and show this graft up.

The Herald of the Looper of our oil preserve or the calculating conduct of the Veterans' Bureau than will this attempt to defraud

the war veterans out of an adjusted compensation.

This so-called bonus is being financed out of the $500,000,000 we ourselves paid into the treasury of the United States at $1.00 per month while we were in the service. A service man who paid one year's war risk insurance while in the service then, after this so-called bonus, go the crumbs who are entitled to veterans.

Almost Desperate

Editor Helping Hand:

I wonder if you could help me as I am almost desperate. My husband has been on his feet all Winter. I have six children and lost one last January. I am steeped in debt, with the underwriter's bill, and rent. My children are ragged. My oldest,
a boy 13, is going to high school
and awfully in need of clothes.
After him I have three girls, 12, 10 and 9, also a boy near 7
and a baby 2 years old. I am also expecting another, and would be awfully thankful for anything
at all, clothing for the children, for the one that is coming, of a baby carriage or a cot bed. I can't buy anything with what I owe. I am almost crazy, and was never in such a predicament before.

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

"The handsome shoe often pinches
the foot."

He who would climb the ladder must begin at the bottom.

Never do an important thing in a great hurry.

To hate whom we have injured
is a propensity of the human mind.

The more haste we make in the worse address we receive there we are from our destination.

Slip mind and no trouble keep
a man in good health.

To rise at six, four, two and seven o'clock, go to bed at ten makes a man live ten times.

He that sits with his back to a draft sits with his face to a coffin.

Always rise from the table with an appetite and you will never sit down without one.

there is room in the house.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON KNOWING ONE'S LIMITATIONS

By Dr. Frank Crane

WHEN President Coolidge asked Judge W. S. Kenyon of Iowa to take the position of Secretary of the Navy, vacant by the resignation of Mr. Denby, the judge replied in a letter that it was a wholesome food for public consumption.

I would especially commend it to the attention of all young men, and old ones, too, for that matter, like-wise women, who have a strong desire to go up and to get on.

The point that it brings out is that a shrewd and level-headed person will not jump at the first chance he gets to become prominent, but will carefully consider his own limitations, and if he is fitted to the responsibilities of the offered post.

The Scriptures somewhere say that no man would build a house and no king would go to war without first sitting down and counting the cost.

There are some men who have stayed down because they were too cautious; and there are other men who have fallen down because they were not cautious enough.

In his statement, declining the position as Secretary of the Navy, Judge Kenyon used these words:

"A man in a judicial position acquires the habit of looking at all sides of a question before arriving at a conclusion.
I am appreciative of the honor conferred and confidence shown by the President of the United States in tendering me the position of Secretary of the Navy. I cannot, however, escape the conclusion that I do not possess the essential qualifications or training for the office. Hence, it seems very clear that I should go no further in its consideration."

It is due to the judge to take these words at their face value and to attribute no other motive to his action than that which has so frankly confessed.

And a proper sermon we might preach from this text is that it is a wise man who knows, first, what he wants to do;
second, what he is fitted for, and, third, his limitations.

There are not a few people in the world who are doing what they intensely dislike. One of the commonest faults of the average man has is that he does not know what he wants.

And many a one has been forced by fate into a kind of success that is no success at all because the work involved in it is of a kind to give him free and joyous self-expression.

If a man loves farming, outdoor life, the handling of stock and the like, he will be happier as a farmer, if he only clears a thousand dollars a year, than he would be sitting in a bank and clearing a hundred thousand a year.

If, therefore, you do not want to be a round peg in a square hole, find out, first of all what you want.

Secondly, any honor or preference, for which one is not fitted by training and by temperament, is most likely to be disappointing in the end.

For instance, I make a living by writing. I do not make so much money as some bank presidents, pugilists and movie stars. But I wouldn't be a member of any of those professions, if I had to work at it all my life, for all the money in the Bank of England.

I would as soon marry a woman I did not like as take up a life calling I did not like.

Third, Judge Kenyon appeared to know his limitations.
He felt that he was not adapted to an administrative office.

And if every factory superintendent, minister of the Gospel,
college teacher, commanding general, political office holder and other person in a place of authority, whose ability is not at all commensurate with the duties of his office, were to resign and take on a job he could do well, the comfort and efficiency of the human race would be considerably improved.

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON DAYLIGHT SAVING

EVERY year about this time breaks out the conflict of interests between those who want to "have daylight" and those who want to "have night."

The Joshua's plan—(Congress or the State Legislature standing for it)—is to change the hour of the day, and to have all the sunlight and moonlight and all pleasures to adjust themselves to the convenience of this arbitrary enactment. Perhaps the most striking statement of the effect of this system is that it is not a day, but a night, that is the result of the system. It is a day, but it is a night, and the day is the result of the system.

To begin with, it is not understandable. It is a day, but it is a night, and the day is the result of the system. It is a day, but it is a night, and the day is the result of the system.

Thank you. You have been sent the address of Mrs. M. M.
who asked for a letter for her sick baby and will be glad to get the letter, she has been asked to call for it.

Has Five Children

for myself. I wear size 35.

Ter of an hour in the extreme.
But, then, comes another average adjustment, which is more serious in its departure from
the truth, but nevertheless is so very convenient that all are willing to disregard its shortcom-
ing.

This is the system of standard time, a necessary compromise imposed by the fact that in our age every man is virtually an inhabitant of the whole globe, and not simply of a fixed spot upon it.

Nobody would think of abolishing daylight saving time, or time; but "daylight saving time"
presents a different proposition.
It does not stand upon the same name brand, inevitable basis as a question of the day, convenience that the others occupy,
but in a measure of admittedly smaller importance, it is a means equally applicable to the light saving may replace the sun, comes another average adjustment, which is more
serious in its departure from
the truth, but nevertheless is
so very convenient that all are
willing to disregard its shortcom-
ing.

The accompanying diagram
will aid in understanding the effect. By the very nature of the system, daylight saving time is of equal length, noon dividing daylight into two corresponding parts. But when an hour is subtracted from the morning, and added to the afternoon, the diagram shows, an inequality
of two hours is created.
This is the effect of the system of daylight saving time. It is a day, but it is a night, and the day is the result of the system.
